

WILSON MAY BE FORCED TO END WAR

London Spectator, in Strong Editorial, Says That Public Opinion of the World Will Yet Compel the United States to Stop in and Bring an End to Revolution in Mexico.

LONDON, January 3.—(By Associated Press Cable.)—The London Spectator, believed to be closer to the affairs of America than any other publication, in an editorial published yesterday, deals at length with the situation in Mexico and says that intervention in Mexico by the United States is inevitable.

The Spectator says that public opinion throughout the world will compel the United States to take forceful action and put an end to the revolution in the Latin Republic by intervention.

It declares further that President Wilson in handling the situation has erred, in that he made a grave mistake in assuming that Huerta was not the strongest force in the work of restoring peace in Mexico, and failing to give recognition to the dictator.

Present conditions in Mexico are described, the waiting policy of the United States Government is commented upon and the sinister claim that public opinion of the world will compel decisive action on the part of this country toward restoring order out of chaos is reiterated.

The publication of the editorial is the subject of much discussion here and is taken to indicate by some that President Wilson may be soon urged to announce a more definite policy on the Mexican situation.

Money Magnate Announces Interlocking Directorates of His Company Are to Be Reduced.

NEW YORK, January 4.—(By Associated Press Cable.)—Samuel Untermyer, one of the most important financiers in the financial world, in a statement last night said that he regretted that the announcement of John Pierpont Morgan & Company to withdraw from a number of interlocking directorates did not include a larger list of large enterprises in which that institution is interested.

The announcement of the Morgan company came as a surprise yesterday. The company announced that it intends to give up the position of so-called interlocking directorates.

That the action was prompted to prevent threatened efforts to enact legislation prohibiting interlocking directorates is not credited at Washington, and it is the general impression of men who are prominent in financial affairs that the move does not signalize the breaking up of the so-called money trust.

Untermyer, while stating that he regretted the action of the Morgan company did not include more directorates in the financial districts, added that he does not believe it signifies anything beyond a business convenience. He pointed out that while some of the members of the firm will resign from some of the boards, others will remain.

John Pierpont Morgan denied that any local complications connected with the action of his company, stating that the move was made simply because his attendance at so many board meetings had become too exacting on his time and that he believes that under existing conditions he can better serve the corporations in which he is interested if he has less personal relationship with their management.

Morgan is withdrawing from the directorates of thirteen railroads, two steamship lines, the Western Union Telegraph Company and many others. He remains director of the United States Steel Corporation, the Northern Pacific Railroad and two others.

Charles Steele, a veteran member of the house of Morgan, is still a director in the railroad, the International Harvester trust, the General Electric Company, and two more large corporations.

Henry P. Davison, another Morgan veteran and since the old financier's death regarded as the active head of the firm's banking interests, remains on the directorate of the Western Union, the United States Life Insurance Company, and the Remington Typewriter Company.

Thomas W. Lamont, a member of the firm since 1911, remains on the directorate of many others.

Members of Humane Society Seek Suggestions for Suitable Memorial for Late R. Davison.

A special committee of the Humane Society consisting of Mrs. L. L. McCandless, chairman, Miss Helen W. Wadsworth, George C. Foster, Mrs. Wilhelm Tenny, Gertrude P. Wilder, E. A. P. Newcomb and A. G. Gentry have been considering the form which the proposed Rose Davison Memorial is to take. The committee asks that anyone who has a suggestion to offer will communicate it to the chairman, Mrs. L. L. McCandless, during the next ten days. The committee will meet Tuesday, January 13, to decide what is to be done with the $1500 fund set apart for this purpose.

It was originally planned to install a drinking trough and fountain for animals at some suitable location in the business part of the city.

Alonzo Gentry, acting as a subcommittee of one, consulted with horse owners and veterinarians and submitted an adverse report recommending that this plan be dropped.

BERLIN, December 22.—German financial experts, especially those connected with the Imperial ministry of finance, are greatly embarrassed and, strangely enough, not by a shortage, but by the vast surplus of money arising from the war tax which, if collected according to the strict provision of the law, will yield not only the necessary $250,000,000, but probably three times as much.

The money needed for the army increase is payable in three annual installments, the first on March 31 next. The bill states that if the required $250,000,000 is obtained before three, or even two, installments are paid, the remainder will not be required, but, on the other hand, the leaders of the financial administration are extremely reluctant to admit having made a wrong estimate of Germany's public wealth, and they fear, and not without reason, a specialist attack on the ground of short-sightedness.

KAMAKAH IS SUMMONED SUDDENLY

John Ouderkirk, Pioneer Resident and Contractor of Honolulu, for Thirty-three years a Resident of Honolulu, Suffered Fatal Attack of Heart Trouble.

(From Saturday Advertiser.)
John Ouderkirk, the well-known Kamakaha contractor of Honolulu, died yesterday afternoon shortly after three o'clock at his home, 1327 Makiki street, the immediate cause of death being heart trouble, from which he had been suffering for the past five or six months. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Ouderkirk, and a son, William R. Ouderkirk, who were both at his bedside when he passed away. It is said that he had two sisters, who reside in Nova Scotia.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at three o'clock from the Makiki Temple, the deceased having been a member of Hawaiian Lodge No. 21, P. and A. M. Interment will take place at Nuuanu Cemetery, the remains to be consigned to their last earthly resting place in the Masonic burial plot.

John Ouderkirk was born in Nova Scotia, Canada, April 13, 1844, and would have been sixty-eight years of age next April. He came to Hawaii about thirty-three years ago, and has resided in Hawaii, off and on, all these years, spending the last nineteen years altogether in Honolulu.

He built, among a number of the larger buildings of Honolulu, the Odd Fellows' Building on Port street, the C. Brewer & Company building, the new wing of the Queen's Hospital and several of the later Island Steam Navigation Company's wharves. The deceased was, up to October, 1912, connected as a partner with John S. Walker, with the Johnson Mill Company, selling his interest in this concern at that time to Mr. Walker.

Ouderkirk was appointed road supervisor of Honolulu in November, 1899, and served in that capacity until February, 1900, when he resigned. He was connected as director with the Builders & Traders' Exchange, and in November, 1903, was elected president of the Master Builders' Association. Ouderkirk was a candidate for the Republican nomination for supervisor in September, 1903. This was his only participation in politics as an active partisan.

Superintendent of Public Works Asks Attorney General to Bring Suit Against B. Cressaty.

Superintendent John W. Caldwell yesterday requested Attorney General W. W. Thayer to take legal steps against Richard Cressaty, unless the latter removes a cottage he is alleged to have caused to be erected on the beach at Waikiki and which infringes on the public right-of-way, which is defined by law to exist between the mean high and low water marks.

The request is accompanied by a blue print map of the locality and three photographs of the premises and the cottage in question. There have been a number of alleged encroachments on the right-of-way which the law confers on the public as regards the seashore of the Islands, and Superintendent Caldwell has resolved to put a stop to this procedure on the part of those who are said to have violated the law.

AUTOPSY ORDERED ON REMAINS OF MEDEIROS

Some days ago Attorney General Thayer called to Deputy Sheriff Charles H. Rose, who was then in San Francisco, to have an autopsy performed on the body of Joseph J. Medeiros, the man who was wanted here on account of the Mrs. Welch prosecution and also on an indictment for embezzlement returned some weeks ago by the grand jury.

Several ugly rumors have been going the rounds in the city recently, following the man's death, and to verify these or set them at rest for all time Attorney General Thayer thought best that an autopsy should be performed on Medeiros' body in order that the exact cause of death might be made known to the world.

Deputy Sheriff Rose will arrive on Monday morning by the steamer Sierra. It is expected that he is bringing with him a written and signed confession said to have been made by Medeiros the day before his death and in which, it is alleged, he said that Mrs. W. L. Welch, who is now charged with perjury, furnished him with fifty dollars, which money he used in getting away from Hawaii at the time he was under subpoena to testify against her before the grand jury.

NEW YORK, December 22.—The New York American today says:

As proof of the most unbelievable state of barbarity found to exist in Mexico, Russell Hastings Milward, an English traveler, has forwarded a photograph showing the execution of a number of children.

The children were driven into water, forced to hold their hands above their heads, and were shot in the back. The tide carried their bodies away.

Democrats Urge Claims Upon Governor—Who Sits Tight

(From Saturday Advertiser.)
Declaring that his nomination was a matter settled between the President of the United States and the United States senate and that he neither sought the nomination nor tried to get any support from Hawaii in his candidacy, Governor Pinkham, at the dinner given in his honor by the National Democratic League of Hawaii last night, declared that he intended to be Governor of all Hawaii. Although the opening was given him by each one of half a dozen speakers to openly declare himself a Democrat, ready to administer his office in the promotion of democracy, the Governor skillfully sidestepped, listening to the speakers up to the first address of Grover Cleveland and letting it stay there.

The Guest of Honor.

The President told me to use every effort to further the interests of these Islands," said the Governor, "and I think that is a broad enough platform to receive from the President of the United States."

The dinner was an enthusiastic gathering of Democrats, with a heaven of Republicanism among the invited guests, the upper dining room of the Alexander Young Hotel being filled to capacity. James L. Cooke presided as toastmaster, at the head of the main table with him and the Governor being Bishop Lathrop, Dr. C. B. Cooper, C. A. Brown, W. H. Farrington, Father Valentine, L. E. Atterton, Col. J. W. Jones and the other special guests of the Governor.

Following the McCann cocktail toast to the President of the United States, Mr. Farrington called for cheers for the President, which were followed by cheers for the Governor, called for by J. M. Riggs. The addresses then came thick and fast.

Democracy's Progress.
Col. C. J. McCarthy, campaign manager in the last election in Honolulu, reviewed the progress of local democracy from the time when it was a third-rate party, when it carried John by the 2-3 majority vote. "If we had had good organization on the other islands, we would have carried those too," he said, "then Link McCandless would be in Washington tonight and not here, because if we had elected him he would be in the job, tending to business."

Col. C. J. McCarthy.

This reference to the man who is not on the job was appreciated. The speaker then went on record as favoring the further candidacy of Mr. McCandless. "He is our logical next candidate for Delegate to Congress," he said.

Palmer P. Wood, L. Cooke, toastmaster, responded to the toast of "Reminiscences of an ex-Senator," making some witty references to the time when he had to hold his party caucuses by himself. "But when the minority voted, it was always a unanimous vote," he said. Mr. Wood acknowledged the support of Governor Pinkham as an American Governor. "If Hilo can bury its hatchet, surely the rest of the community can get together," he said.

Party Loyalty.
L. L. McCandless, whose address was looked forward to with interest, because of the fact that he had been foremost in the campaign for the governorship and because of an expectation that hostility towards the winner of the fight could be expected from him, spoke on party loyalty, saying:

"To Mr. Pinkham, the appointee of our President, Mr. Woodrow Wilson, as Governor of the Territory, I wish to extend congratulations and a hearty welcome."

"There can be no stronger proof of the desire on the part of the people for a change in the administration of territorial affairs than was demonstrated by the reception accorded our new Governor upon his arrival."

"Perhaps since history began there have been parties in politics—divisions holding particular views as to public policies to be pursued in the best interest of the people. Therefore, party loyalty is loyalty not only to party but to one's own views—to one's own principles."

Party loyalty is an honest expression of one's political views and not only a man's own political principles involved, but the political principles of all those holding similar views and banded together to effectually apply such policies.

Loyalty to Principles.
"When any one person assumes to be above such party thus organized, or to be greater than his party, then he is disloyal not only to his own principles but to his party organization."

United States Attorney McCann, although down to tell of the impressions

JOHNSON DEAF TO PLEAS OF IDLE MEN

Governor of California Refuses to Attempt to Give Work to the Vast Army of Unemployed Who Appealed to Him for Aid in the City by the Golden Gate.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 3.—(By Associated Press Cable.)—One thousand of San Francisco's unemployed men yesterday received a reply to their demand for a conference with Governor Hiram Johnson, the latter declining to meet them to discuss their demand for employment.

Governor Johnson was absent when the army marched to his home on Russian Hill this week, requesting a peaceful audience to their claims for recognition. They asked that they be given employment on the roads and other public works in the State for six days a week eight hours a day and at the rate of three dollars per day.

Communication was received from the Governor that he would give a reply to their petition yesterday. In a statement issued by his secretary he set forth his reasons for being unable to comply with the demand.

San Francisco is now making arrangements to care for the hundreds of idle men. A special committee of one hundred citizens is to be appointed to handle the problem. Bishop Hanna will be chairman of this organization which will have the work in charge. Employment will probably be found for the men in the parks, streets and other municipal work and efforts will be made to have the men earn their own way instead of resorting to the dealing out of provisions and the providing of sleeping accommodations, the system followed immediately after the great fire in this city in 1906.

Wilson may condemn and criticize what he finds, but he always has the specific remedy to present.

Many in Hawaii feel sensitive regarding the tariff, but the effect of that tariff has not been felt in Hawaii. In the States now it is realized that the President and his policies are right. The opponents of the tariff, K. after having tried to get rid of the opinion that they can work as well under it as they could under the old schedule K, which gave them the opportunity of putting their hands in the pockets of every man who had to have a suit of clothes."

The Governor then dealt with the Currency Reform Bill and its advantages, which had rescued the country from the financial grip of the unscrupulous capitalists in the commercial capital of the United States and made it impossible for the country now to have the financial policies of the past.

Beyond the City Limits.
D. E. Metzger of Hilo spoke for "The Other Islands." After referring to the once Republican office holder who had never gone over the Nuuanu pass, the senator from Hilo said:

"Our Governor in his able and thoughtful address of yesterday morning clearly pointed out that there is a considerable part of the world, filled with people, conditions, interests and ideas, lying outside of the City and County of Honolulu, but the sense of his timely and important remarks seem to have shot over the heads of some, although I trust a very few of the citizens of this fair and enlightened city."

"All of the people of the Territory feel a pride and a certain sense of proprietorship in our capital and principal city, dear old Honolulu, in its beauty and its many advantages, both natural and artificial, but sometimes we on the outside have been forced to believe that not all of the people of Honolulu always feel the same proper sense of proprietorship and pride in the rest of our beautiful and beautiful Islands."

"During some of the long, dark days that have passed under Republican rule there have been many instances where legislative appropriations for worthy and greatly needed public improvements in the other islands have been caused to lapse by executive orders to not enforce them, and again where large appropriations have been made for specific purposes, but left to discretionary application, the needs of Honolulu have nearly always been considered so paramount as to fully absorb them, without any investigation of the needs of other districts."

Many Present.
Among those present were:
